$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, SEPT. 30, 1881.

To Correspondents.—Communications on topics of local interest are always welcome, but to insure insertion they must be brief and to the point. We shall not be responsible for the views of correspondents. Anonymous articles will receive no consideration. Address all communications to the Proprietor.

"GIVE Arthur a chance," is the almost universal sentiment of the country.

The PRESIDENT has called together the Senate of the United States in extra session, October 10th.

MRS. GARFIELD, with the mother of the dead President and other members of the family, have gone to Mentor.

A CAR LOAD of gunpowder, standing in the railroad yard at Council Bluffs, Iowa, exploded Monday afternoon, shaking the city like an earthquake. Property to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars was destroyed by the concussion. The explosion occurred just at the close of the Garfield memorial services in the churches.

ADVICES have been received at Chicago that typho-malarial fever, bilious colic and pneumonitis are afflicting those rendered homeless by the recent forest fires in Michigan. Many of the sufferers have died and others are now at the point of death. The terrible condition of these people appeals strongly to the charity of their countrymen.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR does not enjoy the fullest confidence of the people to the head of whose government he has been called. His past record is not that of the pure statesman and his course at Albany during the recent bitter factional fight there was not becoming the dignity of the Vice President of the United States. His course did not command the respect of the country, and when the President was struck down by the bullet of the assassin, there was loud and sullen denunciation of this man who had stooped from his high position to manipulate the machinery of a political fact that was antagonistic to the policy of the President. Had Garfield died on that dread second of July, or within a few days thereafter, President Arthur would have found the temper of the people very different from what it was when he was called to assume the office of President by reason of the death of James A. Garfield. The months of suffering which the President was compelled to endure cooled the passions of his people. The honorable and modest course of the Vice President during those months of alternate hope and despair gained him, in a measure, the respect of the people, which he had well nigh lost. They have come to think that, perhaps, after all, he is able to rise above himself and carry out the policy of his predecessor—a policy clearly marked out for him and one from which he cannot well deviate without calling down upon his head the condemnation of his country. He has but to rise above party, above faction, and, in a political sense, above "his friends," to gain in a measure, the approbation, respect and universal esteem that marked the short administration of James A. Garfield.

Courting at the Gate.

A selfish-hearted and bald-headed married man, whose season of courting is gone by, came into the office this week and wanted us to write a piece condemning courting at the front gate. There is a good deal of it going on around town, some of it in his immediate vicinity, he says, and he is annoyed by it. We treated him coldly, of course, and he went away feeling unkindly toward us, no doubt, because we didn't sympathise with him and promise to exhaust our energies in the attempt to crush, at one mighty effort, the great front gate system of the country. We want to say right here that we don't mean to do any such thing. The Transcript can neither be persuaded nor threatened into attacking the holy institutions for which our forefathers fought, bled and hungered until they got as thin as an eating-house pie. When a man gets old and has a wife of his own at home waiting to meet him at the door with fond words of greeting, and a be-slat, is it any reason he should go around seeking to interfere with the hallowed communion of the lovers at the front gate? No, we say emphatically, in the words of one of our departed statesmen, "The institution of the front gate must and shall be preserved!" It is one of the dearest of our American institutions and in season there is nothing half so charming. Patrick Henry—the great and noble Patrik, once said in that eloquent sort of way of his: "Give me a girl at the front gate, or give me death!" Patrick meant it, too. He was one of that sort of men who generally mean what they say. Andrew Jackson, in one of his most eloquent moments, once said: "The blessings of the girl at the front gate, or give me death!" Patrick meant it, too. He was always looking out for the poor, and he often remarked that he'd be switched if the rich were going to have all the blessings that were going. Shall we then, in the face of this evidence in favor of the institution of the front gate, just to please one man who is old and married and bald-headed—shall we attempt the herculean task of eliciting popular opinion against the dearest right vouchsafed in the constitution of the United States? Not this week. Let the loves stand amid the resounding rays of the silent moon and whisper into each other ear about the sweet after-while. If married men don't like to see it, let them take the other side of the street.

THE MARCH OF SIX MILES TO THE CEMETERY THROUGH SOLID LINES OF PEOPLE, ALMIGHTY EMBLEMS OF GRIEF.

THE SERVICES AT THE TOMB.

[Condensed from the Phila. Times.]

CLEVELAND, OHIO, Sept. 26.—The morning opened bright and balmy. The sun came up in all its splendor and a fresh lake breeze imparted to the air an invigorating freshness and many who, on account of last night's shower, had fears very speedily dispelled. At an early hour the hotels and lodging houses began to emit their respective swarms of buzzing humanity and many a luckless wight who had not been able to find a bed and had been compelled to accommodate themselves to the soft side of a stone church step also joined the seething mass and a lively skirmish for breakfast began. The first clock struck twelve and then opened for over forty-eight hours were closed to enable the proprietors to get a start of two hours. Provisions were scarce. A wagon loaded with eggs started from the depot to a grocery and the keeper of one of the restaurants on the square seized the driver and took the whole stock. A butcher's cart, loaded with 3,000 pounds of beef, shared a similar fate. A milk peddler, who had left his cart open, was soon surrounded by the mourners' carriage and those containing the guard of honor comprised all of the procession that entered the grounds. The cavalry halted at the vault and drew up in line facing it, with sabres presented. The band, dressed up in front, with the members' arms and those of the Cabinet behind. The band played "Near me, my God, to Thee," as the military escort lifted the coffin from the car and carried it into the vault, the local committee of reception, Secretary Blaine, Marshall Henry and one or two persons standing at each side of the entrance. None of the President's family, except his wife, left the carriages during the exercises, which occupied less than half an hour. Dr. J. P. Robinson, as president of the day, opened the exercises by introducing Rev. J. H. Jones, chaplain of the Forty-second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, which General Garfield commanded. Chaplain Jones spoke at considerable length of his old comrade in arms, General Bell, who was buried by the German singing societies. President Hinsdale, of Hinsdale College, pronounced the benediction, and the last sad rites over James A. Garfield, the martyr President, were completed. Quite a shower of rain fell while the exercises at the grave were going on, which was the only feature to mar the perfect fulfillment of the day's sad ceremonies. The procession reformed at the cemetery and marched back to the city in the same order that it started from the catafalque.

At Mrs. Garfield's suggestion the casket containing the body of the late President will be enclosed in an iron cage, then a cement wall will be built around this, of sufficient strength to resist all attempts to remove the body, and of dimensions large enough to form the foundation of the proposed monument. The Mayor of the city has detailed a police force to be on duty continually until the final interment.

MACVEAGH'S RESIGNATION.—Attorney-General MacVeagh said, in Washington, Tuesday evening, that he recognized to the fullest extent the propriety of President Arthur selecting his Cabinet from among his personal and political friends. As soon, therefore, as the President had taken the oath of office, Mr. MacVeagh sent him a telegram in writing, and assured the President that "the resignation was not a form, but a fact." Mr. MacVeagh spoke very kindly of the President, and said the country would judge him, not by the selections for his Cabinet, but by the general policy of his administration.

[COMMUNICATED.] Foreign Labor.

EDWARD McNAUL, in Philadelphia a few days since, called on the several immigration societies with the view of getting foreign labor here. The English, Scotch and Protestant Irish cannot be got without having some one in their country to send them forward, and then with some risk for enticing them to leave. The German agent seemed not disposed to send any immigrants to Delaware, as he said he had no market for them. The French, however, seem to be well liked by the farmers, and the society was obliged to take them away at a good deal of expense. However, after much conversation and reference, he said he would send them to me, or to my direction, if I assured him they would be properly cared for. I propose that the farmers arrange to have their tenancy houses vacated as soon as they can, and get German families in them in sufficient numbers to be felt in the community.

WHICH SOLEMN CEREMONY WAS IN PROGRESS THE CROWD WERE INDUSTRIOUSLY AT WORK ARRANGING THEMSELVES ALONG THE STREETS THROUGH WHICH THE PROCESSION WAS TO PASS. A LINE OF SOLDIERS WAS STATIONED ON EACH SIDE OF THE STREETS FROM THE SQUARE TO THE CEMETERY SIX MILES, AND BY THAT MEANS THE CROWD WAS KEPT IN BOUND. THE CROWD WERE FIRST ASSEMBLED ON THE SCAFFOLD, AND THEN WOMEN AND CHILDREN SOUGHT FOR AND OCCUPIED THE HIGH POSITION. THEN CHAIRS WERE ARRANGED DIRECTLY BEHIND THE CURBSTONE, AND WERE RAPIDLY FILLED. EVERY CONCEIVABLE ELEVATION WHICH COULD BE SEEN OVER THE HEADS OF THE SPECTATORS WAS OCCUPIED. THE CROWD, WHICH WAS SO CLOSELY GROUPED, WAS SO UNCOMFORTABLY SQUEEZED THAT THEY COULD NOT SEE OR HEAR ANYTHING. THE SPEAKER CONCLUDED WITH A QUOTE FROM THE BIBLE, "FOR I AM SORRY WOUNDED," ETC. HE SAID THERE WAS NEVER A MOURNING IN ALL THE WORLD LIKE INTO THIS MOURNING. "I AM NOT SPEAKING EXTRAVAGANTLY, BUT I AM SPEAKING THE TRUTH, AS IT IS THE RESULT OF CALCULATIONS CAREFULLY MADE THAT CERTAINLY NOT LESS THAN 300,000 OF THE HUMAN RACE SHARE IN THE SADNESS AND THE LAMENTATIONS, THE SORROW AND THE MOURNING THAT BELONG TO THIS OCCASION HERE TO-DAY. NEW FALL GOODS

JOHN WANAMAKER'S,
Chestnut, Thirteenth, Market Streets and City Hall Square, PHILADELPHIA.

HOSE.

Our lace-buyer has returned from Europe and the new things are beginning to come in.

We have these now:

Floss lace (first appearance here), embroidered with floss silk on silk net; cream and black. Only two widths as yet, $1.25 and $3.25; more on the water.

Spanish ties and fichus, cream and black. Ties, $1.50 to $12.50; fichus, $1.25 to $27. We judge our prices are about 15 per cent. below last season's.

Souffle net, dotted, various colors, 40 cents now; last season, 50.

Antique tidies, 20 cents to $1

Ten counters, southwest from center.

DRESSES.

Fall dresses ready. Colored silk, viz.: brown, bronze, blue, garnet, and green, $28 to 50. Back cashmere, $10 to 30. Mourning dresses ready-made, also made to measure on very short notice.

Fall jackets also. Light-cloth, $4 to 8; dark-cloth, $6 to 10; plaid, $8 to 10. Black-cloth wraps, $6 to 30; light-cloth wraps, $7 to 25.

Southeast corner of building.

LINENS.

We are willing that these should be taken as samples of our summer buying of linens: Barnsley double-damask table-linen at \$1.50, Scotch ditto at \$2, and German napkins, a half-inch under $\frac{1}{2}$ yd. square, \$2.25 a dozen. There are about 6 patterns of each.

We have a wide range in linens very fully covered.

Outer circle, east from Chestnut-st. entrance.

BLANKETS.

Let a $5 wool blanket speak for our bedding.

Manufacturers are responsible for a good deal of the common cheating in blankets. Cotton gets into almost all the low-priced blankets, without getting into the tickets. They are sold for all-wool by the makers, and few merchants know the fact.

A little cotton can be hidden in a woolen blanket, and a good profit hidden with it. If you find a fibre of cotton in our $5 woolen blanket come and tell us.

Southeast corner of building.

LADIES' HATS.

Early fall hats and bonnets, trimmed and untrimmed; black silk and crêpe bonnets; fall feathers; new ribbons.

Thirteenth-street entrance.

SHAWLS.

Chuddas, 4 yards by 2, and very heavy for $15. Such shawls are not to be got for less than $25 in the ordinary course of trade. We can't replace them at the price. All cream; no colors.

East from Chestnut-street entrance.

CHIPS.

People who labor under the belief that an editor is too good to swear, and don't know how, should listen to one just after he has found that he has, by mistake, jammed his mileage brush into the ink bottle.—Evansville Argus.

The want Gen. Spinner to run for Congress in the district made vacant by the election of Miller to the Senate. Spinner is the man who always injected watermelon and cucumber juice into his signature on government greenbacks.—Burlington Enterprise.

Some of our exchanges are very much worried about Sam Houston's grave, because it has no monument. There is really no occasion for any monument on his grave. It is the men who are in danger of being forgotten who need monuments right away.—Texas Sifters.

A girl in New York was robbed of her long and beautiful hair by burglars recently. No clue to the thieves.—Elmira Advertiser. This should be a warning to girls with beautiful hair to lock it up in her bureaux nights instead of hanging it on a chair back.—Rhode Island Journal.

A meeting of representatives of the Smith family was recently held in Pittsburgh to devise means to get hold of six hundred thousand dollars said to be waiting for them in England. Should they succeed in securing this sum, it is estimated that each representative would be nearly one cent richer.—New-York Herald.

To keep his neighbors' cattle out of his field, an ingenious farmer stuck a few nails through a clothes line. A shrewd man saw this device, and soon afterwards patented the "barbed wire" fence. The farmer from whom he got the suggestion now pays him tribute, and the income to the manufacturer is said to be about $100,000 per month.

A passenger train on the Iron Mountain Railroad was robbed near Prescott, Arkansas, on Thursday night, by three highwaymen, who pointed revolvers at the conductor, and made him stop the train. They went to the express car and robbed the safe of about $16,000 in currency. After doing this they went through the cars and robbed the passengers of about $800. The ruffians were all beardless youths.

A Chicago man visiting Cincinnati was shown around by a citizen who said, "Now let's go and see the Widow's Home." The Chicago man put his finger by the side of his nose and winked, and then he said, "Not much, Mary Ann. I saw a widow home once, and it cost me sixteen thousand dollars. She sued me for breach of promise, and proved it on me. No, sir, send the widows home in a hackett."—Peek's Sun.

KEEPING GRAPES THROUGH THE WINTER.—A most excellent, simple and inexpensive method of keeping grapes through the winter is to allow them to remain on the vine as late in the season as frost will permit, and then, after providing yourself with one or more large crocks or jars and some stiff brown paper, choose the middle of a dry day for clipping the clusters from the vine. Then placing a layer of the clusters gently on the bottom of the crock, cover the same with a single thickness of paper, on which place another layer of grapes, covering it in the same way, and so on, layer of grapes and paper alternately until the crock is full; after which set away in some cool place, uncovered for a day or two. Then fit a cover of pasteboard in the mouth of the crock over which paste thin brown paper to keep out the air. Select a dry knoll and bury the crock deep enough in the ground to be out of all danger of the frost. Now lay a board over the top of the crock, which cover with earth, mounting it up to shed off the rain. As soon as the ground begins to freeze, cover the mound with a thick coat of leaves or straw to prevent it from freezing and render the crock easier to get at when wanted. Any number of crocks or jars may be filled and put away in a similar manner and grapes thus kept for months or till spring, and when taken out be as fresh and plump and of as fine a flavor as when taken from the vine.

An exhibition of the intrinsic worth of St. Jacob's Oil, we think the case referred to, that of Mrs. O. W. Hubbard, of this town, cured of Scatic Disease, by the use of St. Jacob's Oil, is certainly striking, and beyond all doubt, conclusive as to its efficacy. The remedy has our indorsement.—Sparta (Wis.) Herald.

By Universal Accord.—AYEN'S CATHARTIC PILLS are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative Pill that medical science can furnish. Being perfectly vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other Pill can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them with great success. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derived from which they obtain and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

For sale by all druggists.

It is again rumored that Princess Louise will return to Canada this fall. The object of her visit is not stated, but it may be that she desires to get acquainted with her husband.—Norfolk Herald.

HIS LAST DOSE.—Said a sufferer from kidney trouble, when asked if he would take another dose of Kidney-Wort, "I'll try it, but it will be my last dose." The man got well, and is now recovering.

When derangement of the stomach acts upon the kidneys and liver, bringing disease and pain, there is no better remedy than Kidney-Wort. It removes the cause and cures the disease. Liquid (very concentrated) or dry act equally efficiently.—Am. Cultivator.
